Notes

Content Patch #137 adds a number of new lookup values, and adds OData navigation fields across the Public Records resources and cleans up the naming of the navigation fields that appear in the RESO.DD.Property resource. Navigation fields are used in $expand queries.

Public Record resources always join one-to-one. As a result, we're changing the navigation field names that were previously put in the RESO Property resource from plurals to singulars. Note that due to Trestle's aggregated data set and metadata, these fields WILL appear in RETS, even if you have not licensed the Public Record data set.

A couple notes about naming conventions. The existing convention in the Public Record data set is to use camelCase rather than PascalCase for field names. We are persisting that naming convention in the Trestle interface for consistency with other ways people access public record data.

In addition, with this patch we're establishing the convention that OData navigation fields will each have a prefix that denotes the data set being joined to. For Public Records, that prefix is "PublicRecordProperty". RESO listing data has not historically had such a prefix, so we're adding "reso" to the beginning of navigation fields into that data set. In other words, a query that joins FROM public record TO MLS data will use "$expand=resoProperty".

For pricing and other details about Public Records please contact Linda Wendt at lwendt@corelogic.com.

These changes will be live on Wednesday, May 27th.
